

Everyone Can Speak

The ability to convey ideas in a coherent and compelling manner is one of the most important skills you can ever develop.

Many people get nervous about speaking in public, giving speeches or presenting in a formal setting. The problem could be real or imagined, psychical or psychological, but nonetheless a clear and present hurdle to each individual. The key towards becoming an effective speaker is to acknowledge these obstacles and tackle it head on. The process of learning to communicate effectively is exactly the same as any other learning process. As long as we are willing to learn, everyone can do it!

About the Program: Everyone Can Speak

"I had speech impediment since birth and could not speak English until I was 13. If all speakers were 'born', I would have been too late the second I was born!" Stuart Lee

This program is named as such because I truly believe everyone can speak; that it is never too late if given proper trainings, opportunities and encouragement. How do I know? Because I am a living proof that speakers can be trained. This will be the underlying ethos of the program. And through this program I hope to impart practical knowledge that I had acquired for the past 20 years as a practitioner of communications. This program will not only instruct on theories, but delivers active, hands-on, interactive and practical guide to becoming a better speaker!
